

Refund, Cancellation & Data Policy

LedgerFlow — Effective as of your account's active subscription term

1. How do I cancel my LedgerFlow subscription?

You can cancel anytime from Account Settings > Subscription > Cancel Plan. Cancellation takes effect at the end of your current billing period, and you'll retain full access to your account until that date. No cancellation fees apply.

2. What happens to my invoices and client data after I cancel?

Your account moves to a 30-day read-only grace period after cancellation. During this window you can:

- Log in and export invoices, client records, and reports in CSV or PDF format
- Reactivate your subscription to restore full functionality

After the 30-day grace period, all invoices, client profiles, and associated data are permanently deleted from our active systems. Encrypted backups are purged within 90 days of deletion. We strongly recommend exporting your data before the grace period ends, as recovery is not possible afterward.

3. Am I eligible for a refund?

New subscriptions are covered by a 14-day refund window from the initial purchase date. If you cancel within 14 days of first subscribing, you'll receive a full refund to your original payment method, processed within 5-10 business days.

Refund requests made after the 14-day window are evaluated case by case for billing errors, duplicate charges, or service outages, but are not guaranteed for standard cancellations.

4. How do prorated refunds work for annual plans?

If you cancel an annual plan after the 14-day window, you're eligible for a prorated refund of the unused portion, minus a 10% early-termination processing fee. Proration is calculated from the day your cancellation is confirmed, based on unused whole months remaining in your term.

Example: cancelling 4 months into a 12-month annual plan refunds the value of the remaining 8 months, less the 10% fee.

5. How do prorated refunds work for monthly plans?

Monthly plans are billed in full for the current cycle and are not prorated. Cancelling mid-cycle stops future billing, but the current month's charge is non-refundable outside the 14-day new-subscriber window described above.

6. Can I pause my subscription instead of cancelling?

Yes. Pause Subscription is available from Account Settings and can be used once per 12-month period, for up to 60 days. While paused:

- Billing stops immediately for the paused duration
- Your data, invoices, and client records remain fully intact and accessible in read-only mode
- You can resume at any time before the 60-day limit; billing restarts automatically on resume

If a pause reaches 60 days without resuming, the account is treated as cancelled and the standard grace period and deletion timeline in Question 2 begins.

7. What happens if my payment fails instead of me cancelling?

We'll retry payment for 7 days and notify you by email. If payment still fails, your account is automatically paused (not deleted) under the same terms as a manual pause, giving you time to update billing details without losing data.

8. Who do I contact for help with cancellations or refunds?

Reach our billing team at billing@ledgerflow.io. Include your account email and, for refund requests, your invoice number. Most requests are resolved within 2 business days.

This policy may be updated periodically; the version in effect at the time of your cancellation or refund request applies. For the current version, check Account Settings or contact billing@ledgerflow.io.
