Pricing FAQ

What billing cycles are available?

LedgerFlow bills monthly or annually. Monthly plans renew every 30 days; annual plans are billed once a year and include a built-in discount. You can switch between monthly and annual billing at any time from your account settings.

Is there a discount for annual billing?

Yes. Paying annually saves 20% compared to monthly billing on Solo, Team, and Enterprise plans — equivalent to getting two months free every year. The Free plan has no billing cycle since it never expires.

Is there a free trial?

Solo, Team, and Enterprise all include a 14-day free trial with full access to plan features. No credit card is required to start a trial, and you can cancel any time before it ends without being charged. You can also stay on the Free plan indefinitely instead of trialing.

What payment methods do you accept?

We accept all major credit and debit cards (Visa, Mastercard, American Express) as well as PayPal. Enterprise customers can also pay by ACH transfer or wire, and can request invoiced billing with net-30 terms.

What happens when I upgrade or downgrade?

Upgrades take effect immediately, and you're charged a prorated amount for the rest of your current billing cycle. Downgrades take effect at the start of your next billing cycle, so you keep your current plan's features until then. If a downgrade would put you over a lower plan's limits (for example, too many active clients), we'll ask you to adjust before the change applies.

Can I cancel at any time?

Yes, there's no long-term contract. You can cancel a monthly or annual subscription at any time; your plan stays active until the end of the current billing period, and you won't be charged again after that.
